"All" Really Means All;

Why you really need to read the whole Bible:

The Bible itself is clear: We need it all. Paul under divine inspiration declares, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, thoroughly equipped for every good work" (2 Timothy 3:16-17). Complete and thorough equipping of the Christian involves complete and thorough exposure to God's Word.

The Whole Picture

You need to read the whole Bible because a Christian needs to understand the whole picture of God's eternal plan for all things, and your place in it, to understand that there are no contradictions or paradoxes in the Bible. You can't truly understand that the Bible is one Book, God speaking with one consistent voice, unless you read the whole Book.

- Every major Bible doctrine has its beginnings in the Book of Beginnings, Genesis.
- Understanding the history of Israel and God's dealings with them will help you better understand the rest of the Old Testament. Why did the Psalmist say he loved the law of God? Why did God become angry with Israel and Judah and evict them from the Promised Land? What happened when God permitted them to return? What were the promises regarding a future Messiah?
- Better understanding the Old Testament will vastly improve your grasp of the New Testament. What are all the prophecies of Messiah that were fulfilled in the first coming of Christ? What is the New Covenant promised in Jeremiah and elsewhere, and when did it actually begin?
- The first five books of the Old Testament are quoted nearly 300 times in the New. All told, there are over 4,000 references to the OT in the New. 20 of the 26 books of the NT directly quote the Old. 30 of the 39 OT books are directly quoted in the New, and all 39 are referred to.

You Can Never Outgrow God's Word

Some Christians have a "been there, done that" attitude toward reading the Bible. Some think they have outgrown the Bible, and they turn to other books and other pursuits more suited, so they think, to their level of spiritual and intellectual attainment.

But the fact is, as soon as you stop reading the Word of God, you begin to forget who God is, and who you are in God's sight. You create a spiritual vacuum into which Satan is only too ready to introduce un-spiritual thoughts.

Will you, by God's gracious enabling, make and stick with a commitment to read the entire Bible in the coming year? Carrying out a commitment to do it within a specific time period will help keep the continuity and unity of God's Word fresh in your mind.
